When Business East Meets Business West: The Guide to Practice and Protocol in the Pacific Rim by Christopher Engholm. New York: Wiley. (HF 5389 E53 1991). The Canadian business people are learning that understanding cultural difference demands a lot more than a few helpful hints. Fons Trompenaars is an author and corporate researcher who teaches executives about the value of global etiquette and how culture can affect business and work. He says doing business on a global scale means respecting the norms of any culture and he says the biggest piece of advice he can pass on are the two phrases common everywhere - thank you and sorry.
