Religious Policy and Practice in Communist China: A Documentary History. By Donald E. MacInnis. Hodder. This documentary history, prepared by the director of the China Program of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the D.S.A., is admirably organized and presented, along the lines adopted. It offers a representative selection of primary source materials, almost all of its 117 documents and excerpts being of Chinese origin, published in China for domestic use.~Dr. MacInnis carefully and succinctly introduces not only the three main parts into which the book is divided, but almost all of the 19 sections into which these are further categorized. His laudable aim is to let the documents, t When Chinese actions threatened the interests or special rights of foreigners in China, the United States usually joined the other foreign powers in efforts to protect their privileges. American troops, for example, participated in the international expeditionary force set to Beijing in 1900 to crush the Boxers Uprising. At the Versailles Conference in 1919 when the United States acquiesced to Japanese takeover of German rights in Shandong, the Chinese clearly felt betrayed. The Versailles Treaty and the Japanese Twenty-one Demands provoked a popular nationalist movement in China - the May Fou
