This Special Issue "Contemporary Natural Philosophy and Philosophies" addresses necessity for the revival of Natural Philosophy and aims at contributing in building the ground for this Phoenix's rebirth. It is an extended synthesis, bringing new elements into classical discipline of Newton and Leibniz, building the idea of unity of nature and human as its integral part, on various levels of organization, and from different perspectives of sciences, humanities and liberal arts from their cultural contexts, including technology. Bringing together the best classical and contemporary writings in the philosophy of mind and organized by topic, this anthology allows readers to follow the development of thinking in five broad problem areas - the mind/body problem, mental causation, associationism/connectionism, mental imagery, and innate ideas - over 2500 years of philosophy. The writings range from Plato and Descartes to Fodor and the PDP research group, showing how many of the current concerns in the philosophy of mind and cognitive science are firmly rooted in history. Nietzsche, Our Contemporary. Eric Walther introduces the infamous iconoclast. Friedrich Nietzsche, who was born in 1844, fell silent in 1889, and died eleven years later, was the first great philosopher of the twentieth century. What made, and makes, him so important, is that he recognized with great clarity and impressive foresight the most troubling and persistent problem of modernity, the problem of values. His attempts to resolve this problem were not successful, but they did uncover depths of issues that still defeat our best efforts today. Portrait of Nietzsche Â© Athamos Stradis 2012. Le If you wish to see only contemporary issues, then we will set aside all of the classic issues that arose in the days of Socrates, Plato and Aristotle (ca. 350 BC). Oddly, this excludes most of the philosophical issues, period.Â Those are the most important contemporary philosophies, in my opinion. I know that many would sharply disagree with me, citing inferior thinkers like Schopenhauer, Marx, Nietzsche, Saussure, Husserl, Heidegger, Baudrillard, Sartre, Derrida, Foucault, Lyotard and Zizek. These latter writers are inferior, in my view, because they are derivative. The entire 20th century failed to offer innovations in Philosophy, and only imitated and diluted the writers of earlier centuries.

" Axel Honneth: German sociologist, his theory of recognition is in fact a manifesto for a political philosophy practice. " René Girard: French philosopher, the decisive contribution lies in Girard's theory of desire, which structure human life through mimicry and triangularity " "Every desire is the desire of imitation of another." Girard is a critique of Freud as Levi-Strauss. Philosophy and Contemporary Issues book. Read 2 reviews from the world's largest community for readers.
