An annotated bibliography provides a brief account of the available research on a given topic. It is a list of citations, each followed by a short paragraph, called the annotation, of about 150 words, commenting on the sources cited. Depending on your assignment, in this paragraph you may reflect on, summarise, critique, evaluate or analyse the source. Read and take notes on your selected texts, with attention to the author's theoretical approach, the scope of their paper within the topic, main points or findings on the topic, and the author's stance. Evaluate as you read and reflect this in your notes; this way your bibliography will not merely be a catalogue, but present your own informed stance on the texts and the topic as a whole. Ask questions as you read. Selected, Annotated Bibliography of the History of Chinese Science and Medicine: Sources in Western Languages. Shamanism in China: Bibliography by Barend ter Haar (2014). Tokyo University of Foreign Studies Digital Repository - includes South Asian Resources Digital Archives (SARDA) - either limit search to SARDA or select "University Library" from community list and then select SARDA. Thomas Aquinas in English : A bibliography / A Select Thomistic Bibliography Topically Arranged. Thomas Aquinas Bibliographia Thomistica - extensive bibliography of secondary literature, over 28.000 records - can search author/title/year or all fields. United Methodist Studies: Basic Bibliographies - compiled and edited by Christopher J. Anderson (2014).
