The study is rooted in social constructionism and builds on lifespan and lifecourse perspectives. The dialogical and structural approach of the theory of social representations is applied to increase sensitivity in exploration of these meanings. The research aim was to capture shared beliefs, values and experiences that these women attach to ageing process by using methods of free associations analysis and semi-structured individual interviews. Data analysis was performed by means of thematic analysis of free associations, and by constructionists approach to grounded theory analyzing the indiv The Study of Women book.
